Two Remarkable Accidents That Happened in North Carolina—Negro and Bundle of Bed Springs—Lady Swallows Shoe Buttoner and Lives.

(Special Dispatch to The Times.)
GREENSBORO, N. C., Aug. 9.—In this moving, stirring modern life, the innumerable serious or fatal accidents one escapes, are more a cause for wonder than those which really occur. Only last week two occurred within fifty feet of this office, of them in the view of the writer, their indirect consequences being more serious than the direct.

In E. M. Andrews's furniture store, the colored porter was opening up a shipment of bed springs, which, for space saving, had been tightly corded. The bundle was standing upright against the wall in rear of the store, the basement stairs on opposite side of the room. Negro-like, the porter, with his pocket knife, gave a lash at the cord; the springs suddenly expanded, sent him clear across the room, hurling him down the stairs like a cannon ball. The narrow stairs kept the whole outfit of springs from following.

They, being checked by the stair facings, rebounded to all parts of the room, scattering over furniture and breaking a valuable mirror.

Meanwhile there was a commotion in the cellar. Mr. Paulkner, manager of the store, and Mr. Huntley, chief clerk, had gone down to enjoy a cool melon, and had just sat down on the bottom step to eat it, when the howling negro landed on them like a cannon ball. The melon was broken all to pieces and all the men were considerably bruised. Mr. Huntley said, "what with the sudden avalanche of the negro here and the racket of tumbling furniture above, I thought that another earthquake had struck Greensboro." The porter went home limping that night, and was so shocked with his unexpected flying trip, he has not been in the store since.

The day after this, one of the horses of the McAdoo bus became frightened at a street car, and rushed pell-mell across the street, breaking into a large glass front of B. Mathias & Co.'s shoe store. The whole panel was shattered into thousands of fragments, the horse was not cut, and wheeling away and colliding with a watermelon wagon four blocks down the street, but a lady who was trying on a shoe in rear of the long store, with a shoe buttoner in her mouth, screamed with panic when she saw the plunging horse crash into the glass. Most fortunately, an ornamental chain was attached to it and the dangerous weapon was easily removed. The lady's life being providentially saved.

It all goes to show that at least, we never know what is going to happen, when, or how.

Children in Burning House.

LEAKSVILLE, N. C., Aug. 9.—Thursday night at 10:30 o'clock the house of Newton Cox, a cotton-mill operator, caught on fire. The entire family was employed in the mill on night turn except two girls, ten and thirteen years of age, who were locked up in the house asleep, and would have been burned to death but for the fact that some one passing saw the fire when it first caught, broke in the house and rescued the children. A large crowd gathered and saved much of the furniture, but the house was entirely lost.

Master James Watson, an employee of the Leaksville cotton-mills, got one finger cut off this morning by machinery.

FOUR GENERATIONS.

Remarkable Reunion at "Bechenbrook" Home of Mr. R. T. Priddy.

KEYSVILLE, N. C., Aug. 9.—Special.—"Bechenbrook," the country home of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Priddy, near this village, is now the scene of a happy family reunion.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Priddy are now in their fifty-seventh year, and were married in October, 1867. This union has been blessed with ten children, all of whom are living, except one boy, who died in infancy.

This week for the first time since August, 1892, all of the children are at home with their families. There are three married daughters—Mrs. C. W. Carter, of Raleigh, N. C.; Mrs. R. F. Harvey, of Albuquerque, N. M.; Mrs. R. T. Moncure, of Richmond, Va. Two other daughters are yet in college—Misses Margaret and Norma, ages seventeen and fifteen respectively. Only one son married—Mr. E. J. Priddy, of Richmond. The other sons are Messrs. Lawrence Priddy, of New York City; R. Edgar Priddy, of Richmond; and Cadet Walter M. Priddy, of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute. This family has been especially blessed in that there has never been a serious illness nor accident in the history of either generation, and this reunion is favored with the presence of Mrs. Priddy's mother, who is now in her seventy-eighth year.

Northumberland is having an abundance of rain now. These showers will make the corn. As good as the rain is for all vegetation it is very trying to the campaigning people. The Marvin Grove meeting has been in process since last Sunday, and a rainy time it has had. Rev. Mr. Cralle and Mr. Hannon have been there during the week, and tremendous crowds have been attending daily. In the morning the Kirkland Grove meeting begins next Friday, a week, to last ten days. Considerable preparations have been made by the good Baptist people all over the Neck for this encampment.

Nearly all of the country people in this section of the State at least have so arranged their affairs as to take holiday from now until the first of September. It has become a custom here for a large majority of the people to quit work during August and have a good time. Many spend the entire month at protracted meetings, while others visit the nearby summer resorts. The young folks find pleasure in picnicking, boating, fishing and bathing along the shores of the beautiful Potomac.

Rev. G. W. Beale is spending some time in Upper Westmoreland county, where he is conducting some revival services.

A number of saw mills here have had to suspend operations for the month of August for the reason that laborers cannot be induced to work this month. But little work of any kind will be done here until the protracted meetings close about the first of September.

School Superintendent G. F. Eubank, held the annual examination for teachers here Tuesday and Wednesday. Many young ladies from all parts of the county were present.

Misses Mable and Lizzie Rice, attractive young ladies of Baltimore, are visiting relatives here.

Miss L. S. Deshields, of this town, is spending some time at Virginia Beach.

Miss Joe Deshields is visiting in Richmond.

Misses Maud Maynard, Bell Gibson, and May Arnett, who have been visiting relatives here, returned to their homes in Baltimore on Friday last.

Mrs. McDonald, of Washington, D. C., arrived in town on Monday last and is visiting at the home of Hon. L. T. Smith.

Mrs. Hughes, of Washington, is visiting at H. C. Rowe's here.

Amelia Crops Doing Well.

(Special Dispatch to The Times.)
OLGA, VA., Aug. 9.—Since my last letter to the Times, the crops here have been somewhat interfered with, and the pastures, which have been green, are now brown and dry. The pastures are doing its level best to recover ground, and catch up, and a very hot atmosphere has been cooled to the degree of needing light covering at night. It is thought to be rather late for corn and much of the early crop upon upland is greatly cut short. Of course there will be many ears where none would have been.

The festivities of the folkmoose have been somewhat interfered with, and the folkmoose, hitherto so gay, has had a deserted look since the setting in of the rains.

TRACY'S RECAPITULATION

FIFTY-HIGH MILES

Soldiers, Police, and Bloodhounds on His Trail.

DEFIED CAPTURE TO LAST.

On June 9th He Escaped From the Oregon State Penitentiary at Salem, Killing Three Guards—After Two Months He Kills Himself.

The death of Outlaw Tracy by his own hand, a perfect and most remarkable man in the annals of crime, and closes a life and death chase which lasted without cessation for sixty-eight days and extended over the greater part of two States.

Since June 9th last Tracy, hunted by Indian trackers, bloodhounds, hundreds of authorized officers of the law, the State troops of Washington, and unnumbered volunteer bands of vigilantes, with a price on his head that amounted to a fortune, traveled over about fifteen hundred miles of wild country and defied capture to the last.

From the moment of his daring escape from the Oregon State penitentiary to his last stand in the swamps of Lincoln county, near the coast of Washington, he killed six officers of the law, slew his fellow fugitive, David Merrill, in a duel fought while men and hounds were on his heels, wounded nearly a dozen other officers pursuing parties, and terrorized the people of two States.

Laying on the country he passed, Tracy rode down stolen horses without number, robbed farmers of food, clothing, and money needed for his flight; slipped and recrossed rivers, hiding when he could and fighting when too hard pressed. Six times he shot his way through pursuing parties, which surrounded and struggled on in his desperate race against death for liberty.

JAMES EXPLOITS PALE. The criminal exploits of Frank and Jesse James, the younger brothers, Murrell and all the horde of desperate outlaws of the West pale besides the daring and reckless courage of the Oregon convict.

On the morning of June 9th, Tracy, then serving a sentence of twenty years for robbery and shooting a sheriff's officer who had attempted to arrest him, made his successful dash for freedom from the Salem Prison.

School Superintendent G. F. Eubank, held the annual examination for teachers here Tuesday and Wednesday. Many young ladies from all parts of the county were present.

the crafty outlaw had provided himself with red pepper and this he strewn over the ground as he passed with the result that the dogs had their noses filled with pepper and were thrown off the scent, until Tracy had time to get to water, where he obliterated his trail effectively.

Cuddehe took up the hunt when he learned of the disastrous defeat of his deputies and promptly with the return of the sheriff, Governor McBridge, of Washington, ordered out the Washington National Guard and set two hundred soldiers on the chase in addition to the numerous bands of county and State officers who already were hot on the murderer's heels.

The trail then was lost for two days and when picked up called for another hunting party, but with the same results. Then Tracy was again in the hands of the law, but when the pursuers were sure they had him he burst through the lines and made two interchanges of shot before being away, leaving one wounded deputy behind him.
